Printed By: Steve Woods - CSUN

Business Date 9-1-15 to 7-1-16

What is the best way to communicate with students: twiter, face book, text, e-mail, drop-box, phone, mail?

Do you discuss with your parents how much in student loans you should take out each term to meet your needs?

How much debt do you think is a manageable amount to have after you graduate?

How can we make Interview exits easier for students to understand?

Share your most memorable or enjoyable financial literacy event.

Do you feel everything possible is being done by the CSU and by the state legislature to keep college costs at a minimum.

What suggestion for student accounting & cashiering services to better provide information at the Orientation?

What is the best way to communicate with students these days?

How could we better advertise or get information to students about the importance of budgeting, paying bills, and for important dates like